

Enclosure Design

A functional enclosure designed to protect and house internal electronic components.

The design balances structural strength, thermal considerations, and accessibility.

Attention is given to manufacturability and ease of assembly.

Built to support both performance and long-term durability.

